It gnaws at him until it makes him a docile person.

Risks must be part of your daily life.

If you don't take them, you don't move forward.

The best way to learn is to fail.

III- Read / Write

Reading and writing are two fabulous ways to improve your skills.

It's a rewarding process.

Reading gives your brain food for thought.

Writing will allow you to bring your thoughts to life.

IV- Learning

Education is necessary.

The acquisition of new skills are essential elements in your elevation.

Be careful however not to fall into mental masturbation.

Wanting to learn is a good thing, but it can quickly become a factor of procrastination.

Between learning and procrastination, there is only a small gap.

V- Self-criticism

Yes, you have to learn to spot the mistakes you make.

It is not a simple process at first, but it is necessary.

You have to constantly question yourself.

Remember, your ego is a camouflaged devil.
