Twitter Thread by Xavier Coiffard

Xavier Coiffard
@AngeZanetti

Are you an entrepreneur / Indie Hacker looking for maker communities to join?

Here is a list of communities you possibly don't know about.

[Thread] ■

Bootstrapped:

It's a small community of bootstrappers, super friendly. Members make and sell desktop apps, SaaS products, and mobile apps.

Created by @steveofmcleod

https://t.co/6XCBs3Z5Um

MakerLog:

MakerLog is perfect if you want to build in public! It's a big community of 7000 members. Folks post their daily tasks and grow a network of supportive, like-minded people!

Created by @matteing

https://t.co/Q3KI1MLGu3

IndieWorldwide:

It's a community of 1000+ Indiehackers based on Slack, with weekly meetups and 1-to-1 founders meetings as well!
I LOVE meeting new IH every week!

Created by @AnthonyCastrio

https://t.co/Qn2ywuAgrF

Jetpack

It's a community of entrepreneurs, super focus on growth. You'll find some SaaS entrepreneurs, Content Creators, Brand Builders, and also some Agency Owners.

Created by @imsamthompson

https://t.co/FddPGBf9Jx

Nocodefounders

It's a community of #nocode founders (obviously), I think it's the bigger one with almost 7000 members! If you build no-code stuff you should register there!

Created by @joshua_tiernan

https://t.co/576Epb4gPl

WebWide

WebWide is a small community of makers and developers with 2000 members. I love the old school design of it (it's a forum), super effective and the people there are super friendly!

Created by @adam_greenough

https://t.co/QViKPLUzOu

If you want to discover more makers communities, chat groups, or even Facebook groups you can check SpreadTheWorld.

I curated a list of 400+ places to post your startup:

https://t.co/RbuaWF4IWk