

Twitter Thread by GREG ISENBERG

GREG ISENBERG

@gregisenberg

Marketing isn't a scam

Marketing makes change happen. Marketing makes your creations known

I'll share some tactics & frameworks I use

How to get lucky in marketing in 2021:

How marketing has evolved:

Marketing used to be a contest for attention

But now, marketing is a contest for CONNECTION

Whoever owns the connection, wins

Turn your product into a social statement

Products that make you feel good or defend you from being cancelled, spread fast

Ex: Make clothes out of recycled plastic

Point: People want a chance to show they stand for something

Are you working with creators?

Some of the world's biggest brands were catapulted in the 1960s via TV

Brands bought TV ads. Captured attention

Working with creators is like buying TV ads in the 1960s

Point: Co-building with the right creators is like fishing with dynamite

Avoid ads. Build media companies

Prediction: every public company will own a media arm

It's a magical shortcut to building true fans

Ads just don't hit the same way

Scarcity creates value

Scarcity creates tension

Scarcity creates word-of-mouth

Scarcity sells

Limited number of physical pieces

Limited number of NFTs

Limited number of events

Limited spots in your community

"Drops" are the new marketing

A drop is a product (often separate from your brand) that creates viral moments in your community

I'd suggest creating a "Drop Roadmap" launching 3-4 drops per year

Goal: to create trust and spread the word

Point: drop the ads, and build drops

Follow me @gregisenberg for more threads like this

I won't let you down

I'll be writing more on my newsletter on how to build community based products and startup/marketing insights

Have you subscribed yet?

<https://t.co/F3G2HRaeqB>

Recap:

A few marketing tactics & frameworks for 2021:

- Create scarcity
- Build media arms
- Co-create with creators
- Define your social statement
- Don't trust yourself. Trust your community

- Connection > attention