Not just a super-app: Paytm is now a group of synergistic fintech platforms

Paytm started as a digital wallet-based platform focused on mobile SIM top-ups and utility payments in 2010. However, in the last 4 years, Paytm has evolved into a comprehensive payments ecosystem. The digital wallet has evolved into a payments super-app including integration with mobile payments networks such as UPI. Paytm's business model is now a group of synergistic payments and fintech platforms that benefit from the strong customer acquisition channels of the super-app and merchant payments platform. The Paytm ecosystem (Exhibit 1 and Exhibit 2) covers payments (wallet / UPI), merchant acquiring, credit, savings, wealth management, and insurance.

Paytm has a ~350 Mn installed base, ~50 million active user base, and 20 Mn+ merchant base (includes online and offline merchants). It offers full-suite merchant acquiring solutions - QR codes, PoS solutions, and payments gateway. It also offers a point-of-sale sound-boxes (a speaker that announces payments received using Paytm). Merchants with a sound-box have shown higher engagement. It also offers Android-based smart-PoS terminals. The smart-PoS offers unified payments acceptance – cards, QR-based mobile payments on a single device and can also help with digital marketing, inventory management, etc. Paytm Payments Bank with ~ 60 Mn accounts is laying the foundation of an inclusive digital bank.
