Hubei province, where Covid started, has 57m people and cities of 11m

They locked down completely, closed airports, roads, schools, business for 16 weeks, then opened up

Deaths per million:

China: 3.3
UK: 676 and rising

Uk economy fell over 20%
Hubei is growing at 4%...

China locked down within 14 days of the virus being identified.

It took us nearly 3 months, and our airports still remain open.

We had a series of partial, failed lockdowns, messages from govt that lockdowns were anti-British, govt pals being let off with breaches...

Science was ignored. Decisions made late. We were paid to go out and socialise. Schools were threatened with being sued if they closed.

It's highly likely the new strain began here because a virus mutates faster if it has more chances to spread. So we're endangering the world...

The PM missed 5 COBRA meetings when vital decisions should be made. He took 2 weeks off as the virus spread, to deal with his latest divorce.

His advisor broke the rules, lied openly about why, and got away with it. His govt gave £billions in dodgy contracts to mates...

But opted out of cooperation with neighbouring countries tries to buy the desperately needed PPE our health workers were crying out for.

The govt wanted hundreds of millions on unstaffed sheds, as a publicity stunt, while 600+ health workers, lacking PPE, died...

There is no condemnation from goct of its usual xenophobic cheerleader (you know who they are) spreading false information about Covid. And as the 2nd wave exceeds the 1st, most ministers went missing ...

Our economy suffered more than any other G20 advanced economy.

There are 195 nations battling this, and we have a worst health outcome than 184 of them - and are the 6th richest.

We still have no decision on schools opening. SAGE advice is still ignored...

Nobody has lost their job. No news media holds them to account. The national opposition is remarkably supine.

The defence is: nobody has had to deal with this before. But 194 other leaders are, and 184 of them are doing better, with less resources...

Meamwhile we get press releases claiming the PMs 8 month old child has the dexterity of a 4 year old. The home secretary is planning state executions. The "star chamber" of a secret, publicly funded research group (which has never published any reseach) decides EU policy...

The PM has been sacked 3x for lying

The home secretary was sacked for working with a foreign power

The education secretary is a fireplace salesman

The transport secretary has 2 secret identities

The foreign secretary didn't know what Dover was...

The housing minister admits to "wrongdoing" by accepting "donations" - and if you can tell me the difference between a donation and a bribe, you're smarter than I am

The health minister takes "donations" from the only sport he excludes from lockdown...

The PMs pal is put in charge of test and trace, fails, loses £3bn - literally, no explanation for where it went.

And if you feel like reporting this to the official govt Corruption Tsar, go ahead: he's her husband.

Now, you might draw different conclusions, but ...

They are corrupt. Incompetent. Unqualified. Lazy. Indecisive. Thick as a boxing day shit, or bare-faced sociopathic liars, or both.

They are, without question, the worst govt the UK has had for 250 years, and possibly the worst elected govt on earth right now...

And you know what: the stuff I just listed barely scratches the surface. I'm confident replies below will list hundreds more examples, all widely reported, none of them denied by govt (because they're true).

If you think 2021 will be better, I'm very sorry. It won't.

Sorry about typos. Too cross to stop ranting long enough to check my spelling.

People are dying. Lives ruined. The nation diminished. And these fuckers ....
