Look. #Congress needs to #STFU with calling what happened, yesterday, an "#insurrection." It was a group of people who occupied a building, perhaps guilty of vandalism & trespassing...but that did not require a man to shoot a unarmed WOMAN at point blank range.

The way #Congress just side-stepped an actual MURDER by their people & desperately ignored crowds outside that felt disenfranchised by a contentious #election, really shows how much most of them don't give a F about constituents--their purpose was to represent their voters.

And to even temporarily "ban" the standing #POTUS on social media should never have been allowed. I think the #CEOs of #Twitter should be arrested for that. They don't lead out country. #Trump should have declared social #media a "public utility"--when that happened.

Whether people "like" #Trump or not...#Twitter should not have the power to circumvent the standing #POTUS from communicating with the public, especially during what many deemed an "emergency"...

And another thing I want to say to people who are overly critical of #Trump--especially those in #Congress--do you fucking idiots know how laws are made? CONGRESS introduces proposed laws and votes on it...any complaints about policy should be directed toward CONGRESS, first.

We have CAREER #CONGRESS members--who are DIRECTLY responsible for almost all institutional "racism, sexism, immigration abuse, police brutality, warmongering, spying" legislation that has passed--& these assholes want to pin that on one man they cock-block for 4 years?! REALLY?

For anyone who needs a basic lesson on how most laws are formed...people (usually rich assholes) "lobby" #CONGRESS members to put forth a #BILL--OUR CONGRESS--HOUSE & SENATE--VOTE ON IT. Almost ALWAYS, both House & Senate must approve Bill, then #POTUS (is pressured &) signs it.

So, given the fact #CONGRESS usually HELPS CREATE AND APPROVE MOST LEGISLATION, WHERE THE FUCK DO THEY GET OFF BEING SO "CRITICAL" OF OTHERS FOR THE VERY INSTITUTIONAL "POLICIES" CONGRESS MEMBERS MADE?!

And by they way, isn't a large percent of our #Congress #CIA? These quivering little bitches were worried about an unarmed female on the other side of a glass door? REALLY? What kind of cowardly, morons do we have working in #NationalSecurity, anyway?
