

Twitter Thread by Nathan Baugh

Nathan Baugh

@nathanbaugh27

20 life lessons you'll learn from sports (but not from school):

Nothing great is achieved by complaining.

Complaining wastes time and energy.

Improving yourself takes time and energy.

Choose wisely.

Optimists win.

If you think you can't win — you've already lost.

If you believe you can win — you've got a chance.

How to take feedback.

The best coaches & teammates call you out on your bullsh*t.

They don't accept mediocrity or even average.

Instead of getting upset, listen to the feedback and apply it.

Value people who change their mind when given new information.

Even better if they actively try to disprove their own assumptions.

You thought one strategy would work but it's not.

What do you do?

Evaluate, adjust, and keep going.

How to thrive under pressure.

You have to perform when the lights are on, when people are watching, and your teammates are counting on you.

It makes work life feel like a breeze.

Execution matters far more than vision.

“Everybody has a plan until they get punched in the mouth.” — Mike Tyson

“A good plan violently executed now is better than a perfect plan executed next week.” — George Patton

Internal motivation > external motivation.

Waking up at 5am for workouts is an amazing teacher of discipline.

Trust your instincts.

You have a split second to make a decision.

If you hesitate, you’ve lost.

Life is sometimes this way.

The ability to think on your feet is an underrated skill.

Cut loose.

Oddly, athletes often perform best when it feels like they don’t care.

When you care too much you get tight and suddenly easy things become difficult.

Have fun out there.

A team is only as good as its weakest link.

You can view this in two ways:

1. Only work with the best.
2. Lift others up to be the best versions of themselves.

I prefer the second — the whole can be greater than the sum of its parts.

Do everything you can to build and keep momentum.

Momentum is hard to describe. But when you’ve got it, you’ll know.

How to build it:

Do small things exceptionally well.

Let small things become big things.

Not everyone is the superstar.

Alex Caruso:

"A big reason guys get stuck in the G League... they don't realize the position they're trying out for.

It's like going to a job interview thinking you're going to be the CFO, and they're looking for someone to clean the bathrooms."

Make everyone around you better.

Team sports are a positive sum game.

So is life.

Take that extra minute to lift someone else up.

Avoid assholes.

Don't care how smart, how talented, or how productive.

Don't let these people into your team or company.

Learn just enough to be dangerous.

You may be a forward, but if you can step to the 3-pt line and the defender has to respect that... you have a huge advantage.

Same applies to business.

Learn a bit about how different systems work together and you'll 10x your value.

Talent combined with effort leads to achievement.

But effort is twice as important.

"Without effort, your skill is nothing more than what you could have done but didn't." — @angeladuckw

Think in terms of systems.

Act in terms of people.

Take care of your body and your mind.

- Eat well
- Exercise
- Sleep
- Go outside
- Hangout with friends

Your productivity and happiness will skyrocket.

Work in sprints.

Leo Messi walks 83% of a soccer game.

The other 17% makes him the best player in the world.

The epitome of “work like a lion, not a cow.”

Bet on yourself.

Steph Curry was a 3-star recruit who was turned down by all major college basketball programs.

He just broke the NBA's three-point record.

If you enjoyed that, I write 2-3 threads per week breaking down unique sports content.

Follow @nathanbaugh27 to catch those in your feed.

Here's on you might like: <https://t.co/9FkFIn7FQN>

Shaq spent his first $1 million on 3 Mercedes Benz, jewelry, and a trip to Vegas.

Now he makes $30+ million each year from his investment portfolio.

THREAD: Shaq's 15 best investments.

— Nathan Baugh (@nathanbaugh27) November 29, 2021

If you enjoyed this tweet, you're gonna love my newsletter where I curate sports news in a witty, insightful way.

Try it free here: <https://t.co/AxwDVh5Ka0>