Twitter Thread by Paul Furber

Paul Furber
@paul_furber

Oh we care Ben. Lots of people care. What we DON'T care about is your greasy, treasonous, dual-loyalty opinion of it.

That's why the media really hates Q, isn't it? Millions of people asking questions instead of being obediently afraid.

Your worst nightmare.

#qanon

> President Trump retweeted a conspiracy theory from a QAnon account today that claimed Barack Obama accidentally killed Osama Bin Laden's body double.
>
> Nobody cared! Nothing matters at all! pic.twitter.com/fitHAnbbOi
>
> — Ben Collins (@oneunderscore__) October 13, 2020

Sometimes the mask slips and we can see what you really wanted all along.

Fear. Your stock in trade.

Finally, overwhelming numbers of human beings, including millions of government-hating Americans, need to accept high taxes and severe curtailment of their familiar life styles without revolting. They must accept the reality of climate change and have faith in the extreme measures taken to combat it. They can't dismiss news they dislike as fake. They have to set aside nationalism and class and racial resentments. They have to make sacrifices for distant threatened nations and distant future generations. They have to be permanently terrified by hotter summers and more frequent natural disasters, rather than just getting used to them. Every day, instead of thinking about breakfast, they have to think about death.

http://archive.is/ktdKe

Everyone on God's green earth from Barney The Dinosaur upwards knows the President Of The United States has a ridiculously high overall security clearance.

Except you. You're outraged that he's retweeting 'conspiracy theories.'