Twitter Thread by The Right One

The Right One
@the_right_007

Great to hear that Hindus have no right to comment upon Sikhism. Fine. But then, why have Sikhs the right to chant verses of their Gurus (which are NOT Hindu as Sikhs have categorically declared they've nothing to do with Hinduism) that outrightly insult Hindu beliefs? Read on.

@SSanbeer May I please know what this verse is doing in the Granth of Sikhism? It's from a Sikh website, the link to which is https://t.co/gWXxfq1AaY

@SSanbeer Now on, all these links are from a yet another Sikh website, the link to which is https://t.co/7wehhV8xtL

@SSanbeer

@SSanbeer

@SSanbeer

@SSanbeer

@SSanbeer If Sikhs are not Hindus (that their intellectual Bhai Kahn Singh categorically declared in the 19th century with the publication of his paper 'Hum Hindu Nahi'), why are they still carrying these direct and insulting attacks upon Hindu devi-devtaas, beliefs and rituals?

@SSanbeer And until and unless Sikhs remove these gravely insulting words towards Hinduism said by their Gurus and recorded in their official texts, why must Hindus not consider them to be an extension of the idol-worshipper-hating Islamic cult?