Radical Muslim political advocacy orgs are celebrating the election of 62 Muslim Americans who won races at all levels of government. Their victories mark another banner year for Islamist groups that seek to train, fund, and elect their favored politicians

Among these winners are a handful of Islamist politicians who espouse radical views and associate with extremist groups.

Many of these newly elected officials belong to the far-left wing of the Democratic Party, but others have even more troubling resumés, leading Islamist student movements and nonprofits or owing their political fortunes to Islamist underwriters.

Chief among these is Democrat @akoabdulsamad, who was reelected to the Iowa state legislature's 35th district. Since 2015 Abdul-Samad has been the chairman of the American Muslim Alliance, a controversial political action group whose leaders have promoted violence against Israel.

"The statements that are attributed to the organization and some of its members are offensive and outrageous," Hillary Clinton said in 2000 after returning a $50,000 political donation to AMA.

Although Samad claims to be the "new face" of AMA, he has already taken legislative action reflecting his group's anti-Jewish agenda.

In March, he opposed an Iowa House bill to combat the rise of anti-Semitic hate crimes, despite the state legislator's persistent attempts to educate the public about "Islamophobia."

.@NidaAllam, winner of the Durham County Commissioner race in North Carolina, apparently believes that local government should concern itself with matters of foreign policy — at least when it comes to Israel.

As a political activist in 2018 she successfully lobbied the Durham City Council to pass a resolution prohibiting local police training with Israel, relying on the distorted theory that these infrequent joint training sessions are responsible for police brutality in America.

Allam has repeated anti-Semitic tropes predicated on conspiracies about Jewish world domination. “This is the United States of Israel,” she tweeted in June 2018 after the Trump administration froze aid to the Palestinian Authority over concerns that it was incentivizing terrorism

State Rep.-elect @ImanforColorado serves as the spokeswoman for the Colorado Muslim Society, a Denver mosque that banned women from attending worship services during a coronavirus shutdown.

In Delaware, State Rep.-elect @MadinahForDE’s resumé includes senior leadership positions with @NationalSJP, a campus club that uses violence and intimidation to harass Jewish students and further the Palestinian agenda...

and the Muslim Student Association (MSA), a university-based nonprofit founded to serve as a recruiting pipeline to the pan-Islamic Muslim Brotherhood.

Jodeh and Wilson-Anton did not wait to be officially sworn into office before associating with anti-Semitic hate groups. Shortly after securing election victories, both legislators were listed as guest speakers at American Muslims for Palestine’s (@AMPalestine) annual convention.

According to the Anti-Defamation League, “AMP promotes extreme anti-Israel views and has at times provided a platform for anti-Semitism.”

Michigan State Rep.-elect @AbrahamAiyash is cut from the same cloth as Madinah-Anton, having served as president of Michigan State University’s MSA chapter, although his acquaintance with extremists doesn’t end there.

Aiyash received help in his bid to win legislative control over the Muslim-majority city of Hamtramck. @EmgageActionMI credits Aiyash’s victory to its outreach efforts in Michigan after it organized 67,000 text messages, 17,000 phone calls, and 6,000 “mailers” on his behalf.

Emgage was co-founded by an attorney known for representing some of the most notorious terrorists in U.S. history, and it often holds its candidate forums at extremist mosques.

Aiyash kicked off his campaign with an April Facebook live rally featuring prominent local Islamists such as Hamtramck NAACP President Asm Kamal Rahman, who was called on to resign from the NAACP and the Michigan Coalition of Human Rights for making anti-LGBT statements.

In November 2017, Aiyash tweeted his support for another extremist friend, telling Mika’il Stewart Saadiq that “we love you.” Saadiq spent 10 years under the tutelage of the late Imam Luqman Ameen Abdullah, a black Muslim separatist killed in a 2009 shootout with FBI agents.

Abdullah’s group sought to overthrow the U.S. government and replace it with an Islamic state. Moreover, Saadiq is “unapologetically supportive” of Islamist cop killer Jamil Al-Amin.

After running unopposed for New York’s 36th Assembly District in Astoria, @ZohranKMamdani promised to “build a socialist New York.” monstration as “a fight against fascism.”

Mamdani is the co-founder of an SJP chapter at Fordham University that was shuttered in 2016 after hosting militant anti-Semites and intimidating pro-Israel students.

In August, Mamdani participated in a Times Square protest opposing the construction of a Hindu temple over the site of a demolished mosque in Ayodhya, India.

.@MaureeTurnerOK, Oklahoma's non-binary state legislator and first Muslim lawmaker belongs to a mosque that features a clinic run by the Islamic Circle of North America, the unofficial U.S. branch of Jamaat-e-Islami, an Islamist revolutionary movement responsible for war crimes.

She is also a board member at the Oklahoma chapter of the Council on American-Islamic Relations (@CAIRNational), a Muslim Brotherhood legacy group that the United Arab Emirates designated in 2014 as a terrorist entity.

At least seven CAIR board members have been detained or convicted for terrorism-related offenses.

Understanding the importance of local politics, Islamists are graduating from radical campus clubs to local seats of power, forging bonds along the way with anti-Jewish provocateurs, Kashmiri separatists, and black identity extremists.

Despite the limits of local governance, their ambitions go far beyond filling potholes and promising fair wages, to promoting divisive foreign policy issues and privileging Islam above other faiths.

Instead of celebrating the "first-ever" election of certain ethnic and religious minorities, Americans should prepare to experience the rigid illiberalism of municipal Islamization.
