If it takes you more than 5-7 secs on a chart, its not worth a trade. The chart/setup should be appealing at first sight. #TrainYourEyes. I go thru abt 200 charts daily and maybe approx 250+ on weekends

How my watchlist is prepared:

1) Once a chart looks attractive, I,

1/n

Toggle the chart in multi TF's to spot any PA/ patterns

2) Recheck with diff indicators like ST/Ichi/Cci

to see if anything favorable or otherwise

3) 1 last check on HA (dbl/triple confirmation)

4) If FnO stock, I go through the OI/ COI data else correlate volumes with pa

2/n

5) Jot down Entry/ SL levels.

Next morning, go through the preopen prices of the watchlist & try to spot any unusual activity like BO, etc.

Finally at opening i check for possible O=H/L or ORB

You ARE in a bull run hence you think trading is easy.
