Was long in IRCTC, all profit gone in a whisker, squared all of it went short double the quantity and recovered the the losses. Point am making, as a trader don't be fixated with with direction just as flexible as you can be. We need profits as traders, don't care how good my

View is. As long as Capital is there and protected small accidents will happen, that's for sure all that matters how soon you recover and how you treat the losses. Cheers

3mnt chart. A setup I follow closely intraday. there were 8 candles before it hit the first circuit (5300). If you can't find the direction and the ferocity of the movement, from 6100-5300, thinking its difficult to capture, you are yet to be in the ring let alone fighting in it
