Twitter Thread by Mama Bean ■■■

Mama Bean ■■■
@kututwo

■■

hahah I love this energy I'm seeing like a masculine who is waiting and day dreaming and very sweet and it's like they are both the knight of cups and the emperor but what's fascinating is the feminine is also the emperor? lmao so the way it's playing out is the masculine is kind of like off waiting for the feminine to get their work done I see this feminine being really focused, sitting working at a computer, writing in a notebook, or a sketchpad, i'm seeing a red pen/marker, I feel like the whole month of october the feminine was very busy and this masculine was like no it's okay I know you've got stuff to do I'm going to just wait and do my thing and I know you know I'll be here when you're done and it's kind of funny I think this feminine doesn't even realize hahaha The empress also came out ■ I do feel like essentially whatever this like big push to do all this work was is coming to a place where yes like it's still there that "down to business' energy is there but this empress / emperor feminine is very balanced and it feels like someone stepping into a place of creation and manifestation and phewwwwie that hard work has paid off with the ten of pentacles I tell you. I'm seeing that this feminine is also walking away from anyone who is like I guess not picking up the phone let's put it that way like if someone is sleeping on them or like the knight of cups can be kind of the wishy washy knight in my book where they are there one minute and not the next this energy of the emperor/empress is like "no. thanks I know there is something so much better" and really releasing anything that isn't TRULY there you know? Like only taking what shows up and really is tangible and creates a sense of community, happiness, this ten of pentacles isn't the shallow type this really does show that like deep fulfilment that normally is lacking in other ten of pentacles it shows a family enjoying one another and you can see how that doesn't just happen one of my friends told me that talking about her own family and marriage how she's been married for almost ten years with two kids and how it's taken a long time for her and her husband to really get to a place where they are comfortable and can talk and get one another. she was like it's work and I think that really shows up in this ten of pentacles too I feel like it can be easy to be dreamy like that knight of cups like everything will just fall into your lap one day and it will magically work itself out but in real life there is mess involved and people are complex and it takes effort and dedication to truly build what it is you are after. Maybe people in the spiritual community would disagree with this as "things aren't meant to be hard" but life is kind of hard sometimes and you can't decide how others you interact with are experiencing life and how they experience you either. All you can do is respond according to what you are faced with and how it feels right to you. and being aware and responding rather than reacting is the key there right? I'm sure you've heard that a few times by now. The outcome of this is the eight of pentacles which i talked about recently to me this is the most romantic card in the deck and in this deck it's a very devoted card this honestly shows a couple who will work together and build something together this is someone who works hard on their business and their career and is building their career yes but this is also a couple who will support and love each other and stick around when things get tough and be loyal to one another too. This is likely a new connection after leaving something behind that no longer fit because it was more of a dream and less tangible. like i said it feels like someone was sleeping on it. but i also do feel like this masculine is just like five feet away lmfao You know what i mean like maybe you two just haven't met each others eyes yet like i've said this before too it's when you are so busy focused on something else you forget to look up and you don't look at the thing that's been looking at you. that's the energy. i feel like the ace of swords here is showing that soon enough you will realize and see what this is and you don't need to stress or worry about it so much the ten of swords here is empowered there is the release with the full moon which you know you are doing and go bravely as you are. I see this unfolding beautifully for you as you do. Thank you