

Twitter Thread by Nicholas Molodyko

Nicholas Molodyko

@molodyko

“Jim Crow” originated from the name of a black character from early- and mid- 19th century American theater. Crows are black birds, and “Crow” was the surname of a stock fictional black character, who was almost always played onstage by a white man, wearing blackface makeup.

Due to the prevalence of this character, "Jim Crow" became a derogatory term for people of African descent. From the late 1800s, the name came to signify the social and legal segregation of black Americans from white —a synonym for racial segregation, particularly in the South.

The laws were created by white southerners to enforce racial segregation across the South from the 1870s to the 1960s. Under the system, “whites only” and “colored” signs proliferated across the South at water fountains, restrooms, bus waiting areas, theaters, pools, and schools.

Laws made this segregation possible. In 1896, the Supreme Court declared Jim Crow segregation legal in the Plessy v. Ferguson decision. The Court ruled that “separate but equal” accommodations African Americans were permitted under the U.S. Constitution.

There was also a subtler, social dimension which required that blacks demonstrate subservience and inferiority to whites at all times. A black man who succeeded in business might find his shop burned to the ground by white lunatics.

A black woman who failed to step off of the sidewalk to make way for a white man might be fired by her employer the following day. A black man who had a relationship with a white woman might be hanged in the middle of town.

<https://t.co/3iYxsALfv>

Jim Crow is more relevant today than ever. Because the sentiment among racists never went away. Highly subversive. And in the last decade it has emerged its ugly head, not how the media portrays it, but among the media itself. The media demonstrates Jim Crow day in and day out.

Here is the ugly truth. The media is a Zionist enterprise. And Jim Crow laws are the basis for Zionism today or vice versa.

<https://t.co/ODjXWvvygl>

This has been going on for decades, but the same media have hidden it from Americans. <https://t.co/mCadbaDx5V>

Replace “colored” with “deplorable” and that restriction is placed upon us 99% [silent] majority on the internet, in favor of the 1% [loud] elite. Whereas; we once had a voice in the news and on social media, now, we do not. It’s an economic strategy, just as it was in the South.

The media’s strategy is a sure fire way to ensure oppression, instability, criminality, corruption, hell, and war.