@JustTrueTalk1

Many years back I never liked you, pre 2015, I started seeing the hope in your candidacy knowing fully well that you'll someday make us proud as a nation. You came with the hope mantra, the larger populace joined your train and the mandate was delivered, but because our.../1

... value system had been bastardized, the yarn for quick gain syndrome which the jackals and hyenas of yesteryears had planted in us made many loose the hope for a good change. We who still believed in you fought to give you a second chance, though many still got weary./2

They want a magic, but you're just a retired General and a lover of common man and a better country. You aren't a magician like the thought you'll be, you eschew freebies but embrace hard work. You never craved for luxury, you live within your mean and encourage other to do so./3

They hate sound judgment and dislike been checked, they tried to truncate and topple your government through hate and lies. They have people from all works of life and profession in their coven, but the Patriots are solidly behind you, we know you have your own shortcomings.../4

... but won't let them burn down our Fatherland with their shenanigans. They employed foreign bodies but we silenced them with truth and oneness. You promote gallantry in our soldiering and give us hope of a better nation.

You deserve our respect and honor Mr President. /5

I celebrate you on this special day of yours, truly legends are born in December coz I'm also one.
Happy Birthday to the Reformer of our nation, we owe you appreciations for keeping the lid to our Treasury locked from their filthy hands of corrupt elites and their cronies. /6

I pray for a long live with sound health and mind for you my President and father of our nation. My the goodness that comes with that day never depart from your life in it's entirety. Your children shall always sit round your table and you'll never cast your young ones. /7

Happy Birthday 2 U sir @MBuhari
