Twitter Thread by SEGA L'éveilleur®■

SEGA L'éveilleur®■
@segalink

The concept of “New Year” as pedestalized is optimistic to boost the mental health of the majority who needs encouragement. Even though it doesn’t mean a new cloud, sun or moon will materialize neither does it guarantee anything fresh asides the calendar design. #TwennyTwennyOne

> Define your goals, see through believing eyes, purify your mind, discard negative thoughts, believe you are insurmountable, choose to rise against all odds, let life's resistance weaken at your constant pump of positivity and faith; you're a conqueror. Act like it this new year!
>
> — \u1eccM\u1eccLADE (@Vickie___O) December 31, 2020

It also doesn’t remotely suggest that it is something that has never happened before. The Bible clearly states that there is nothing new under the sun. I take it as a question bordering on personal responsibility as corroborated by the doctrine of “New Year Resolution.”

Which you will agree with me is the most abused and disrespected concept in the history of man. Same old patterns are often repeated over & over again. Same old rituals since human beings are creatures of habit. So let us all take this as a question. Will this year truly be New?

Will we allow our brains to be freed from its conditioning, toxic opinions, callous judgements and unjust conclusions and convictions? Can we start anew? This is the actual charge that is suggested when people wish you Happy New Year. They hope to see you do things differently.

Our lives can be shallow, superficial with very little meaning without purpose and education (indoctrination mostly) is also a hinderance. Can we recalculate our coordinates and change our trajectory for good beginning from this day or are we condemned forever to primitivism?

Every year and during festive season, I unblock everyone that must have transgressed against my handle, an act I have come to regret over the years with people set in their ways to pitch a tent at hating on people who they find different from them. This ritual is destructive.

Every year I record successes and the journey keeps getting better and I hope to share this with all without excluding anyone. Can we drop the prejudices, toxic perception and start anew with a clean slate? Can we have better engagements and learn from one another?

Remember when I mentioned the Pareto Distribution as regards more being given to those who have and more being taken from those who have not. The rich will forever get richer but can we at least elevate the hearts and mind of those poor in spirit even if they live in denial?

If you are not willing to change for better and renew your minds by taking personal responsibility then I'm sorry there is nothing new about the year for you. It's the same old thing and nothing would change. But fir those willing to take risks & give peace a chance...Enjoy! ■

