Twitter Thread by Modern Day Zorro: "Ungodly Blogger"-John MacArthur

Modern Day Zorro: "Ungodly Blogger"-John MacArthur
@ModernDayZorro

Tomorrow is Inauguration Day. I pray that it is peaceful and that it is not a continuation of what occurred on January 6th. I won't argue the merits of it. I can't imagine for a moment what the possible outcome could have been for even going to the Capitol. 1/

I watched as pastors were maligned, even condemned if they did not vote Trump. To attach one's own salvation to a vote. Shame on you and your damnable lies for adding to the stress and propping up a bullying culture because someone else thought and voted differently than you.2/

We will not forget still others who told Christians that they were not Christians if they voted "Democratic". It wasn't just John MacArthur, I assure you, but as he continued his campaign for Trump on every conservative outlet that would have him he emboldened other pastors to neglect and even supplant "teaching of the Word" for political rhetoric. You were there, you saw. Republicans want us to move forward and "heal". Sweep it under the rug and "move on". Only wait, there's still this "COVID thing" (Dec. 20th-John MacArthur called it) we 4/have to continue to ignore. "There's no pandemic". Perhaps you didn't hear John MacArthur continue that same mantra "What pandemic?" as he stood there, 30 pounds lighter, and looking quite ill still. As others have said, "it's not the MacArthur I recognize", or maybe you 5/are the one that is changing. I know I feel forever changed through this year and beyond. So, to all the TheoBros and Self-Righteous Hos (profiting off the Gospel), was it worth it? You know the lies that you told in the service of a madman. Which one, take your pick? 6/

There's a lot going around. To the Fallkirk Center, Eric Metaxas, the Paula Whites and other false prophets, to Sean Feucht and the mop that sits on his head, @ThomasMoreSoc, Tom Buck, G3, Josh Buice, Jenna Ellis, and a whole lot more not mentioned, you've made 2020 memorable 7/

Always end things with a song:

Jenna Ellis-

Hey woman, you got the blues
Yes you ain't got no one else to use
There's an open road that leads nowhere
So just make some miles between here and there

https://t.co/qMbAKrbaPc

@threadreaderapp unroll por favor