Twitter Thread by [redacted]

[redacted]
@wordamentalist

These fuckers want me off social media. So called independence supporters who spend all day every day reporting my independence videos on tiktok, my tiktok page and my live-streams in an effort to shut me down and make me go away. I've had enough. They've got what they want.

But I won't go without naming them because I'm sure if they're targeting people like me, who work hard to campaign for IndyRef2, then I'm sure they're probably trolling others in the same way from behind their ghost accounts.

Angela Leitch is NOT a Yesser in my opinion. She has worked hard to come across as one but behind the scenes she is very friendly with the most toxic of unionist accounts on this platform. She has infiltrated our movement. https://t.co/PJ9BXw1hJE

Nigel Jack, my girlfriends ex, has had an unhealthy obsession with me since me and my gf got together. The police had to get involved and as he has conditions not to make direct or indirect contact with her, he has moved onto me for the last few months. https://t.co/576C8zwxis

Nigel, under the guise of Dave Chisholm, has became friends with Angela and they now work hand in hand to attack my tiktok page and spread false & damaging stories about me on Twitter. They are two very twisted human beings.

Nigel &/or Angela have been creating fake profiles on TikTok impersonating me as a unionist, amongst other things and using my REAL name as the usernames. Nigel has been tweeting my real name, location and any other information he can find about me.

He claims to be receiving these details by DM but since some of the information being posted isn't known by other people, I can only surmise that some of the info he has obtained has been obtained illegally on his behalf by his brother who works at DVLA.

It seems they'll stop at nothing to find out exactly who I am, where I live, who I work for etc. The political nature of my social media means that information like this could fall into the wrong hands and put me in real danger.

Therefore I have to decide whether or not tweeting and posting tiktok videos campaigning for IndyRef2 is really worth it. As much as I want Scotland to go it alone, at this moment in time I sadly feel it's not worth putting myself in danger or interfering with my personal life.

The two accounts mentioned in the thread above are also working with Mark Robertson, a serial doxxer who also poses as an independence supporter and befriends people before passing out their personal details vis his private website. https://t.co/NUsVRPb4Kz

My advice to everyone else is to block these accounts and be careful who you trust on social media. Not everyone who smiles at you is your friend. I've been lucky enough to meet many of you in real life and know who I can trust, but these accounts cannot be trusted.

I don't know if my decision to withdraw from social media is permanent or not but, as I said above, the way I feel right now it is just not worth it at the moment. I'd love nothing more than to do as I was doing before - being a strong voice for independence. Maybe one day.

@threadreaderapp unroll