An Introduction to CANSLIM (Thread)

CANSLIM is a growth stock investing strategy developed by William O'Neil.

O'Neil was the founder of Investor's Business Daily and in 1964 he became the youngest person to ever purchase a seat on the New York Stock Exchange at age 30.

O'Neil's success came from studying the greatest winning stocks of all time and the methods of the most successful investors of all time including Bernard Baruch, Jesse Livermore, Gerald M. Loeb, Jack Dreyfus, and Nicolas Darvas

The Dreyfus Fund is a mutual investment fund in which the management hopes to make your money grow, and takes what it considers sensible risks in that direction. Your securities dealer or his mutual fund representative will be happy to give you a prospectus.

From this research, he distilled 7 key characteristics which showed up again and again in the top-performing stocks of every market cycle.

Together they form the acronym CANSLIM

Current Quarterly Earnings Growth
Annual Earnings Growth
New Products/Services/Management/Price Highs
Supply and Demand
Leader Versus Laggard
Institutional Sponsorship
Market Direction

C In CANSLIM

In terms of Current Quarterly Earnings, we are looking for increases over the same quarter in the prior year of at least 25%.

For this metric the higher the better and preferably there is also excellent sales growth and improving margins.

The New factor in CANSLIM is where the story of the company comes into play and this by itself can produce incredible appreciation in a company's stock price.

N in CANSLIM

Look for new and revolutionary products and services which change how we live our lives and with large total addressable markets.

The N also looks for stocks hitting new price all-time price highs which is a clear sign of a stock in demand

Supply and demand is another key characteristic to consider when it comes to selecting high potential stocks.

S in CANSLIM

It's important to understand how the # of shares in the float affects a stock's price movements and how the price of a stock is determined.

To judge supply and demand we analyze price and volume charts to look for institutional footprints.

Determining whether a stock is a leader or a laggard is another important component of stock selection.

Here we are looking for Relative Strength signs and outperformance relative to the market even before an uptrend begins.

L in CANSLIM

In short, we are looking for the leading stocks in the leading industry groups with excellent fundamentals as well as price and volume action

For institutional sponsorship, we are watching for an increasing trend in the amount of fund ownership as well as high-quality growth funds with excellent track records starting positions.

These institutions have access to the best analysts and data available and once they begin accumulating shares we can ride the uptrend that their buying support creates.

The most important component is the market since ¾ stocks follow the overall trend.

We need to be able to determine both when the tide is on our side and also when to take a step back from the markets and wait until conditions improve

Overall, the CANSLIM methodology provides an excellent foundation to build from as you develop as a trader.

You may adapt certain criteria and find your own edges but it's certainly worth learning especially if you are new to the markets.
