8 Chart Patterns by William O'Neil

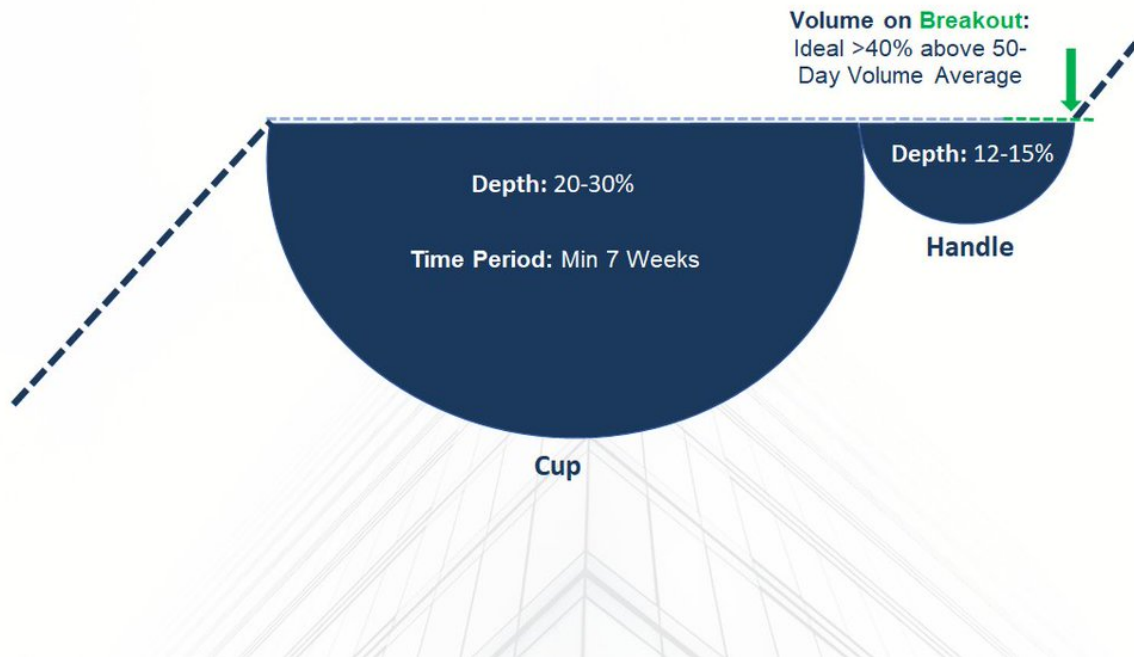

Let's break them down one by one■

Perhaps the most famous basing pattern found in the market is the Cup with Handle pattern.

- Chart resembles a cup with a handle
- Base length: Minimum 7 weeks
- Base depth: 20-30%
- Buy point: high of the handle
- Handle length: 1 week
- Handle depth: no more than 15%

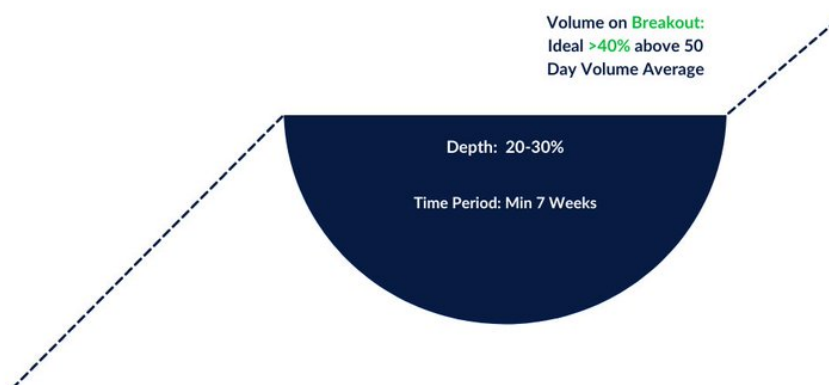

CUP WITH HANDLE PATTERN

There is also a Cup without Handle pattern.

- Chart is just a cup, no handle
- Base length: Minimum 7 weeks
- Base depth: 20-30%
- Buy point: High of left side of cup

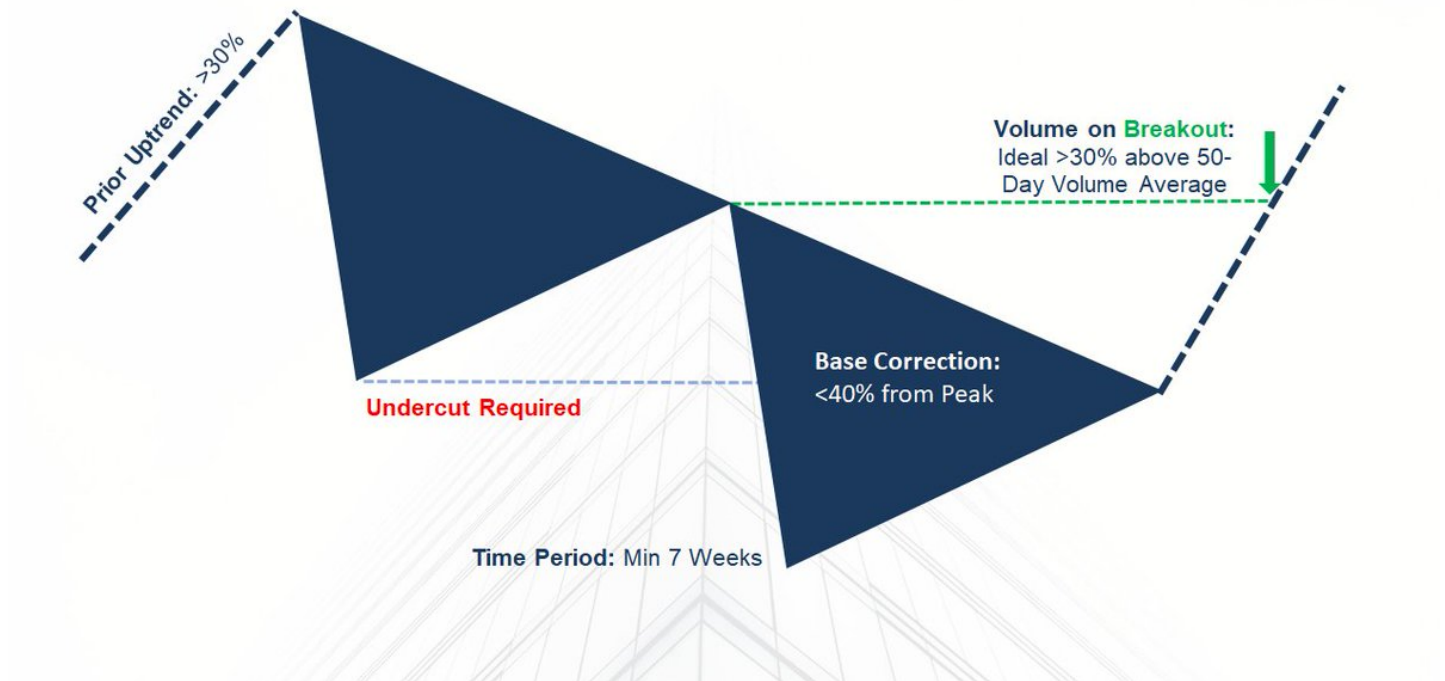

CUP PATTERN

The Double Bottom chart pattern is also very common & is one of the most powerful patterns to learn.

- Base resembles a "W"
- Base length: Min. 7 weeks
- Base depth: < 40%
- Buy point: middle of "W"
- Second low must undercut first low

DOUBLE BOTTOM PATTERN

The Flat Base pattern is another well known structure coined by William O'Neil.

- Base resembles a shallow consolidation
- Prior uptrend must be greater than 30%
- Base length: Minimum of 5 weeks
- Base depth: < 15%
- Buy point: High of structure

FLAT BASE PATTERN

The next structure is called the High Tight Flag (HTF). This is one of the most rare but most powerful base types in the market and if handled correctly can change your year.

For a stock to fit the HTF criteria it must:

- Base resembles a pole & flag
- Base length: 3-5 weeks
- Base depth: < 25% (flag)
- Stock must run up 100% in less than 8 weeks (flag pole)
- Buy Point: High of flag

HIGH TIGHT FLAG PATTERN

The IPO Base is a must know pattern if looking to achieve superperformance in the markets.

- Normal base just for IPOs
- Base length: Minimum of 7 days (up to 5 weeks)
- Base depth: < 20% (sometimes 50% in some market environments)
- Buy point: high of the base

WEEKLY CHART

The Ascending Base pattern is another structure you must familiarize yourself with.

- Base on base on base pattern with higher lows
- Constructed during market weakness
- Base length: 9-16 weeks
- Base depth: 6-25%
- Buy point: High of the third pullback

The last pattern you must learn is the Square Box.

- Forms after breakout out of a cup & handle / double bottom
- Base length: 4-7 weeks
- Base depth: < 15%
- Buy point: High of the structure
- Square box is quicker than a flat base

SQUARE BOX PATTERN

Things to look for near the pivot points of each pattern ■

- Tightness in price action
- Dryup in volume under pivot
- Increasing volume through the pivot point

These are base patterns so we should expect volume to be BIG when the stock breaks out.

All of the supply has been accumulated by institutions and they begin their markup phase. ■

Learning these patterns will help you spot & trade the biggest winners in the market!
