

Twitter Thread by SiSu WiTHiN ■■■■■■■■■■

SiSu WiTHiN ■■■■■■■■■■

@sisu_sanity

1/

This whole thing is SO shady for so many reasons.

GameStop shares continue their rapid fall back toward earth, along with AMC Entertainment and Express

2/

A Reddit forum has played a big part in this.

Let's start there.

How r/WallStreetBets gamed the stock of GameStop <https://t.co/PD7JS4F0FE>

3/

February 2019

"Chinese tech giant Tencent now plans to lead a new Series D funding round for Reddit, the social news forum plagued by controversy over the past decade."

Tencent Buys Stake In Another U.S. Social Network -- Reddit <https://t.co/Jfu170yrKC>

4/

Tencent, the world's largest video game vendor, invested in a company, Reddit, which is banned in China?

Weird.■

Reddit, Banned in China, Is Reportedly Set to Land $150 Million Investment From a Chinese Censorship Powerhouse

<https://t.co/uEiuj0lzx8>

5/

These guys that are under investigation.

■■

U.S. government reportedly looking into 'League of Legends' owner Tencent's gaming stakes <https://t.co/eiSB0fgXQb>

6/

Robinhood is another key player in this.

Reddit and Robinhood gamified the stock market, and it's going to end badly

<https://t.co/aZiNklrcLK>

7/

"Vlad Tenev, Robinhood's co-CEO and co-founder...was born in Soviet-era Bulgaria."

Inside Robinhood, the free-trading app at the heart of the GameStop mania

<https://t.co/L5msh28XaH>

8/

■■

February 2018

"Online brokerage startup Robinhood raised $363 million in a new round of funding led by Russian billionaire Yuri Milner's investment group DST Global."

Free trading app Robinhood raises $363 million, valuation soars to $5.6 billion

<https://t.co/5oy9e4IXOr>

9/

Milner again.

■■

April 2017

"Commission-free trading startup Robinhood has raised $110 million in a round led by Russian billionaire Yuri Milner's investment group DST Global."

Trading startup Robinhood raises $110 million in new funding round

<https://t.co/EsvidTryAT>

10/

And a Kushner.

"A venture fund run by Josh Kushner, brother of the son-in-law of US President Donald Trump, has joined a new funding round for Robinhood..."

Kushner venture fund helps turn Robinhood into a unicorn <https://t.co/OfJo5Lh3ZF>

11/

Now GameStop. Bad deal.

"From declining sales to shuttered stores, the underlying value of this company is still questionable, and stock gains don't change that."

Ignore the Reddit-fueled spike, GameStop is actually still in trouble
<https://t.co/MexHBk791f>

12/

How about AMC Entertainment, another stock involved in the mayhem?

Oh.

■■

May 2012

China's Wanda to buy U.S. cinema chain AMC for $2.6 billion
<https://t.co/JWsNaaVLZ3>

13/

Nothing to see here.

■■

AMC's Disgraced Chinese Owner Wins Big in the GameStop Frenzy
<https://t.co/h1vzld0qkh>

14/

Yikes.

AMC Theatres Warns It Could Run Out of Cash in Early 2021 <https://t.co/zycuQRLgps>

15/

Express?■

Wexner.

"...capitalizing on the heyday of shopping malls first with the 1980 launch of Express, which catered to a slightly younger clientele than the Limited."

Jeffrey Epstein's only known client was the man who owns Victoria's Secret

<https://t.co/XZJDCK4LA7>

16/

Well, you get the idea.

December 2020

Express Lays Off 10% of Workforce at Corporate Headquarters

<https://t.co/MbGbpnGPBm>

17/

Good - release the hounds.

<https://t.co/WPFPzFTyOW>

Reddit trading frenzy fades as Yellen summons agencies <https://t.co/anPKKstUkZ> pic.twitter.com/xFzAYlItvf

— Reuters Business (@ReutersBiz) February 3, 2021