Twitter Thread by Charlie Bilello

Charlie Bilello
@charliebilello

The US averaged over 2 million airline travelers a day over the last week for the first time since March 7, 2020.

We're now only 21% below pre-covid airline travel levels and closing the gap fast. With business travel accounting for roughly 12% of total airline travel, we may not see a full recovery until businesses resume their pre-covid travel routine (which may not happen).

US Airline Travelers (% Change vs. Same Period in 2019, 7-Day Avg)
(Source: TSA.Gov)

