I missed that DOJ has posted the individual certificates listing what offenses Trump pardoned for each person listed in his January 19 master clemency warrant, which had names but didn't spell out the covered crimes. https://t.co/oL44VoCVbr Here's Steve Bannon's, for example.

BE IT KNOWN, THAT THIS DAY THE PRESIDENT HAS GRANTED UNTO

ROBERT ZANGRILLO

A FULL AND UNCONDITIONAL PARDON

FOR OFFENSES CHARGED in the United States District Court for the District of Massachusetts in a fourth superseding indictment (Docket No. 19-10080-NMG) charging violations of Sections 2, 371, 981(a)(1)(C), 982(a)(1), 1343, 1346, 1349, and 1956(h), Title 18, and Section 2461(c), Title 28, United States Code.

A common theme about these, starting at the top of this thread with Steve Bannon (who was charged with defrauding donors to the "Build the Wall" campaign https://t.co/wvDo0m2ryv) is none had served any prison time. A few were awaiting sentencing; most were not yet even tried.

It is good that the Justice Department has made publicly available the official scope and limits of what Trump let these people off for, rather than just the vague and generic hand wave of the "master warrant" certificate. /end
