Twitter Thread by Blake Burge ■

Blake Burge ■
@blakeaburge

10 websites you didn't know you were missing (until now) :
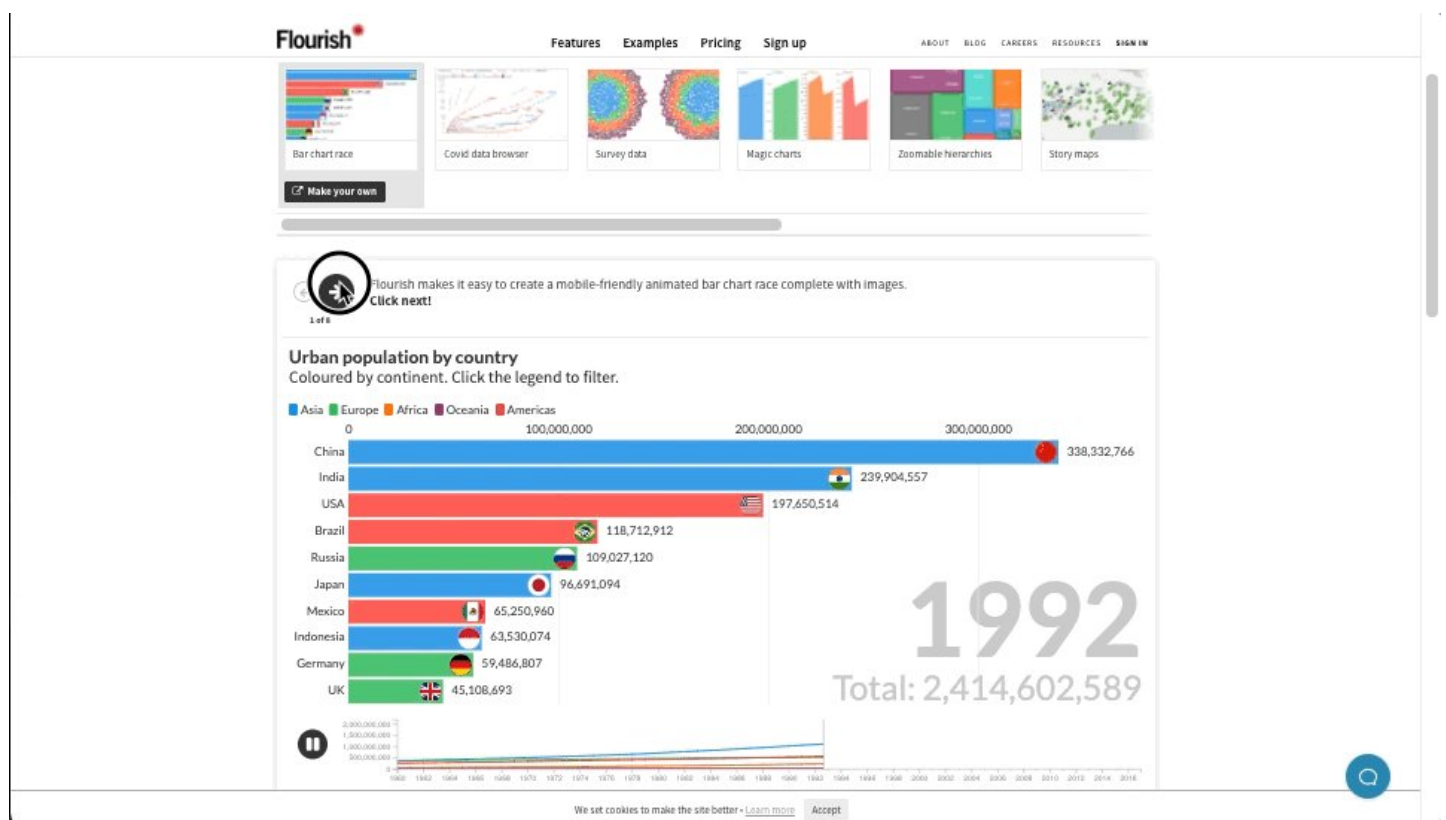

https://t.co/vC0nCFDmk0

People are visual learners.

Easily turn your data into stunning charts, maps, and interactive stories.

Upload a spreadsheet, and return with:

• Animated bar charts
• Survey data
• Scatter plots
• Story maps & more

https://t.co/g9YBl2ELwq

Looking for a way to make your presentations more engaging?

Build interactive polls, quizzes, and more allowing your audience to engage in real-time.

Using their smartphone, attendees can answer questions and the results are visualized as they happen.

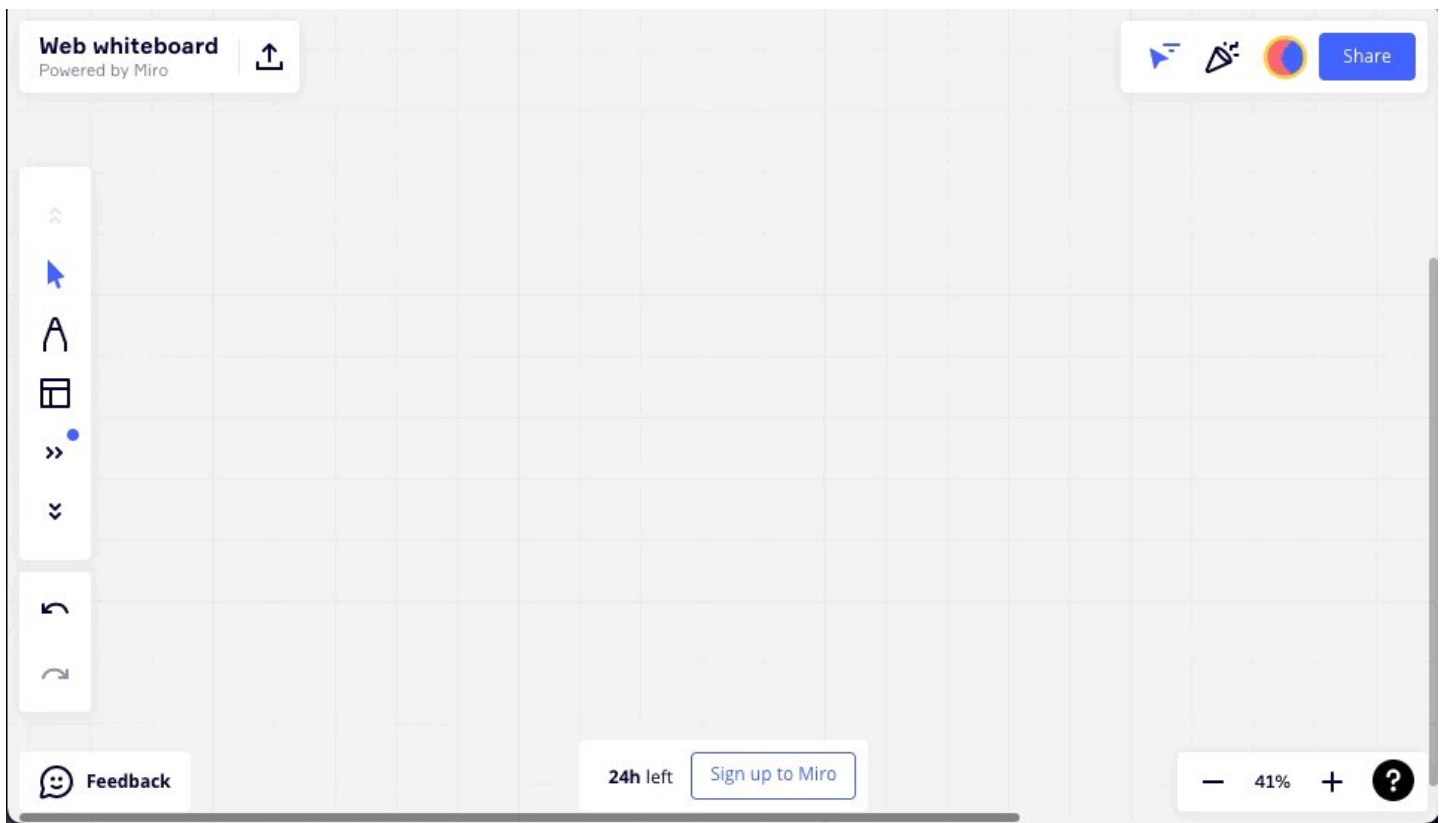

https://t.co/wsUNfyHzFb

An online collaborative whiteboard ideal for remote meetings, brainstorming, and ideation across teams.

• Make flowcharts
• Build product roadmaps
• Engage in a quick retrospective
The best part?

It's free.

https://t.co/RxDEsvPB2w

My friend @thejustinwelsh brought this site to my attention recently.

If you're in the solopreneur game and need to spin up a quick landing page or website for just about anything, Carrd is tough to beat.
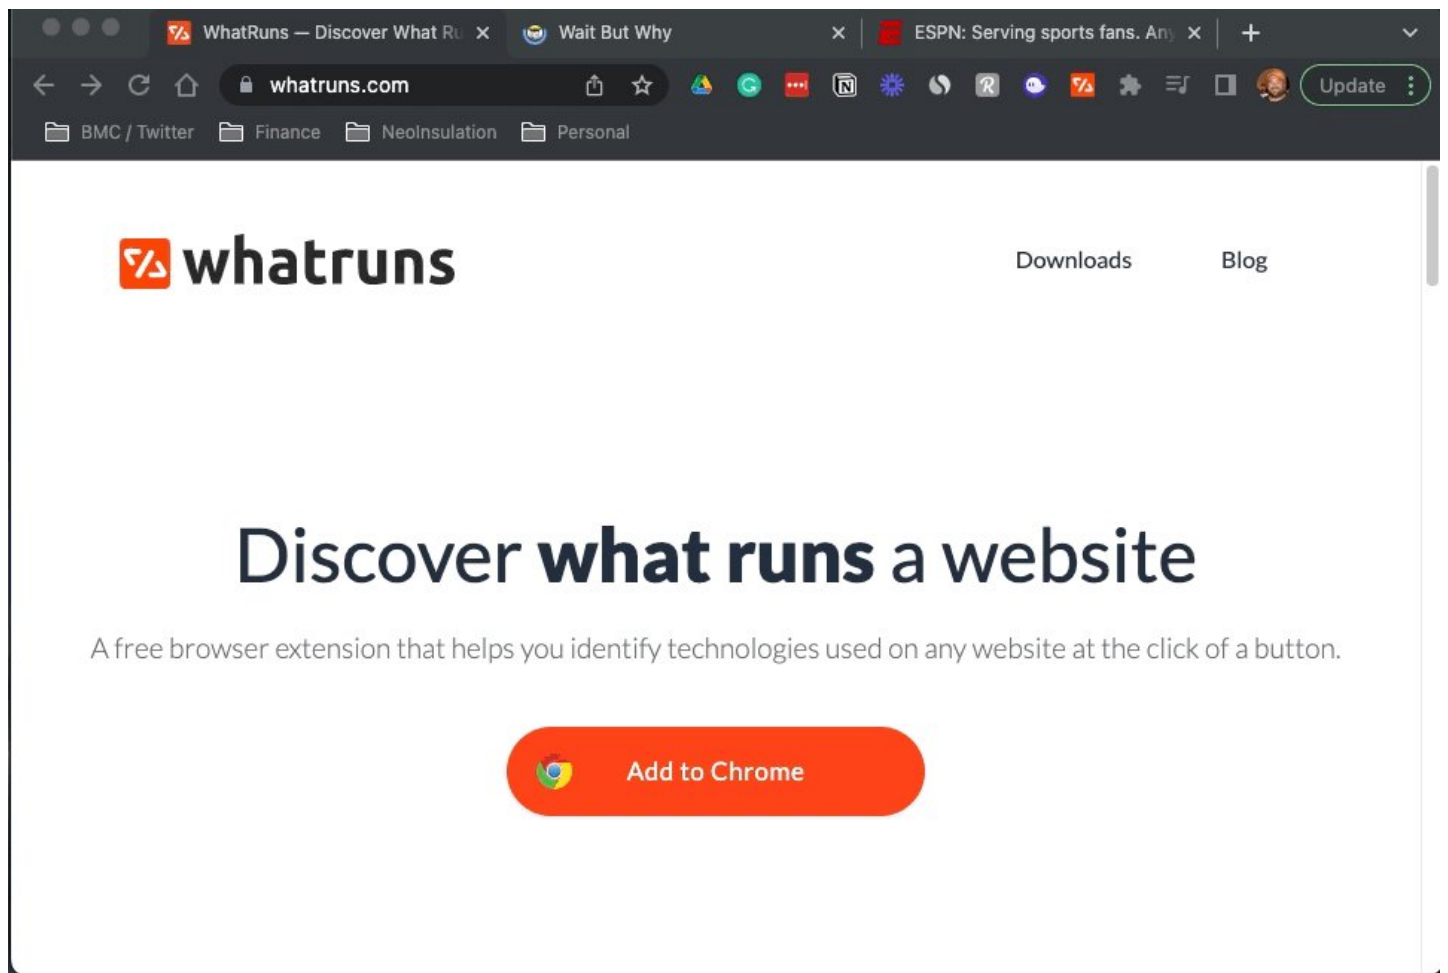

Simple, free, mobile responsive.

Check 'em out.

Here's one for the nerds (like me).

Ever wondered what tech stack is running that cool website you're viewing?

With 'whatruns' it's easy.

Once you have the Chrome extension installed, just click the icon & see everything behind the scenes.

Like this:

A free and open-source graph drawing software developed in HTML5 and JavaScript.

Its interface can be used to create diagrams such as flowcharts, wireframes, UML diagrams, and organizational charts.

No login to create and no account required.
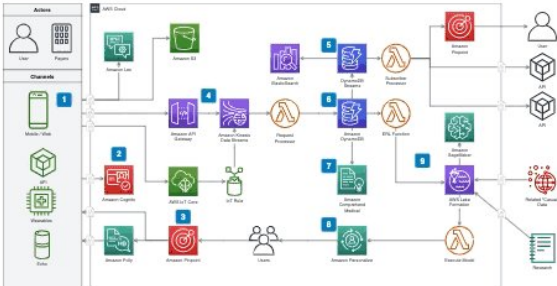

https://t.co/CPHIaJ4yW8

A free online photo editor you can use directly in your browser.
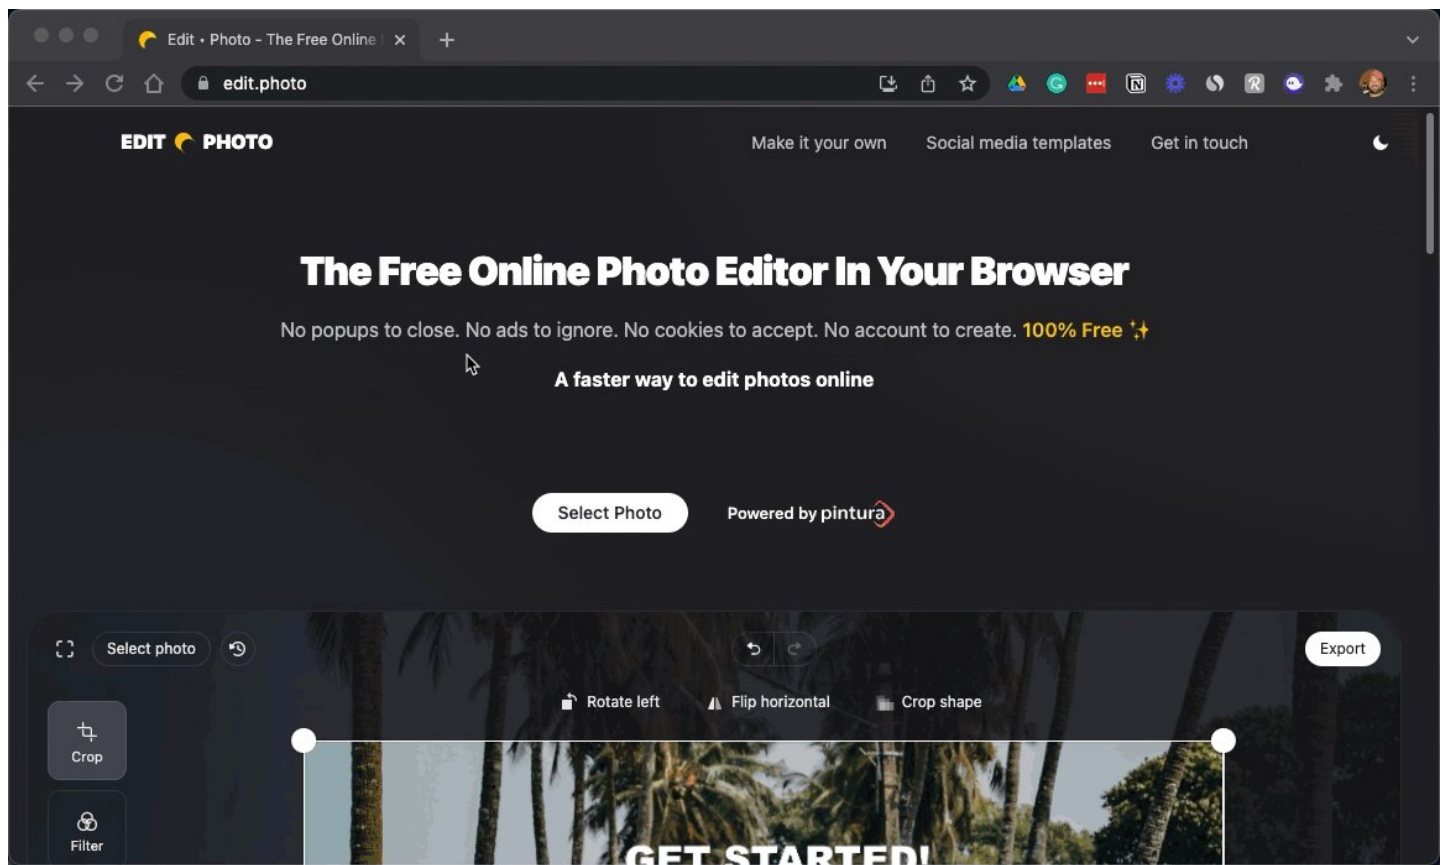

No ads, no account to create, no cookies to accept.

Just drag, drop, edit, and save.

https://t.co/MCtLVhp2Uw

There's no denying that mental models, frameworks, and tools to help you make better decisions are super popular.

With untools, you get a categorized list:

• Mental models
• Instructions on how they're used
• Examples you can put into practice.
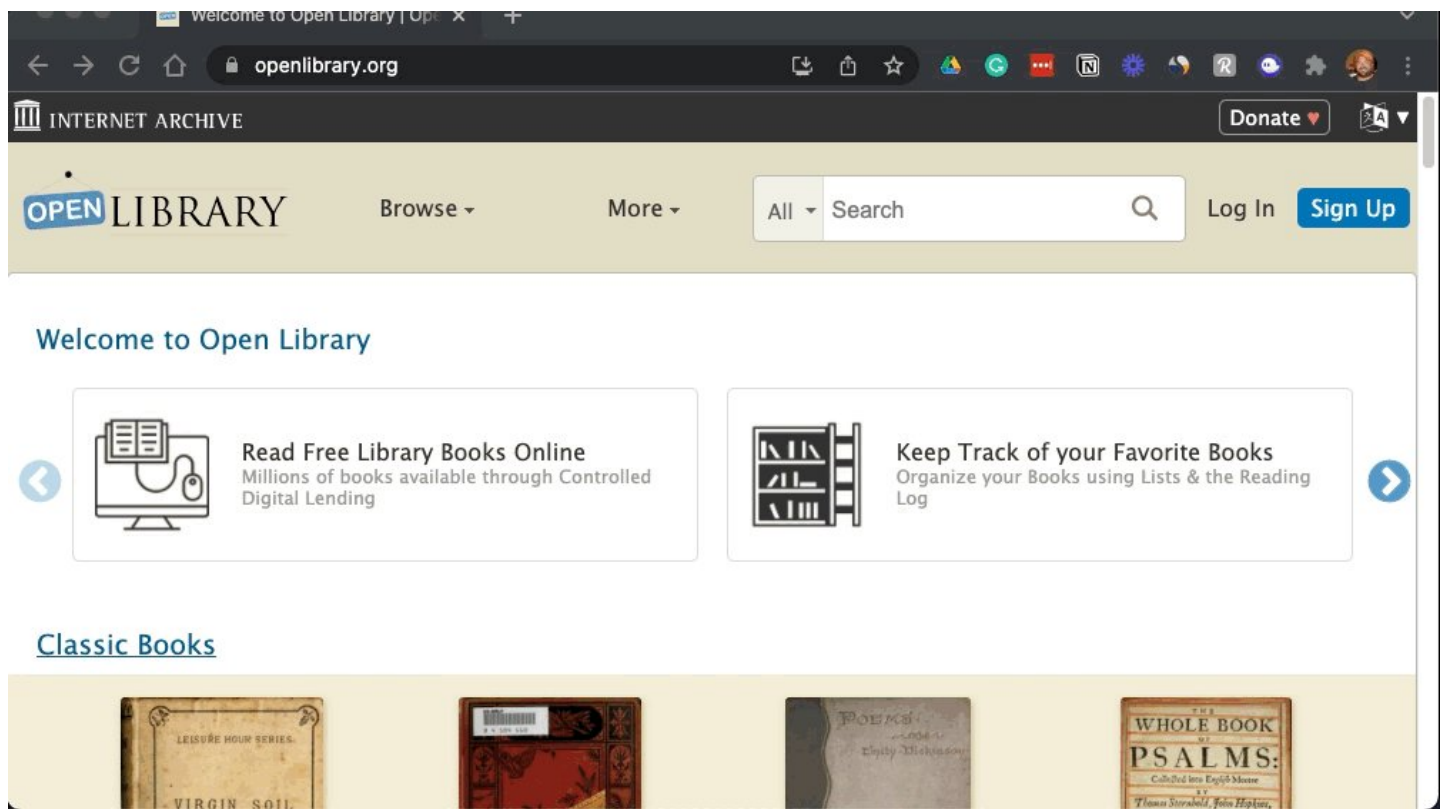

Millions of books: Available for free.

Booklists seem to be all the rage recently on Twitter.

(I'm guilty of posting a couple myself)

Instead of a list, here's a link to a library full of them.

The goal:
"A web page for every book ever published."

Learn to code for free:

It's never too late to learn a new skill & I think it's safe to say, computers aren't going away anytime soon.

HTML, CSS, Python & more.

They also have an awesome YouTube channel with 1,000's of hours of instructional videos.

Bonus: https://t.co/86cQHaQgUA

Put your diet on autopilot.

Create a free, personalized meal plan based on:

• Food preferences
• Diet type
• Budget
• Schedule

Eating smart has never been easier.

That's it for today!

Follow me @blakeaburge for weekly threads on business & productivity.

Join 12,500+ others & check out my newsletter—It's free!

•The best of Twitter
•In your Inbox
•Every Sunday
https://t.co/KPDWcXYbFv

If you enjoyed finding a few sites you were missing, you might enjoy finding a Twitter account or two you're missing out on as well.

Here's one of my favorites.

@wdmorrisjr dropping knowledge on a regular basis,

Def, worth a follow.
https://t.co/OKdYVIYS27

My team closes 80% of our sales,

Because we sell like a bunch of rookies.

5 beginner questions that close deals:

— David Morris (@wdmorrisjr) May 22, 2022